We contract the course of the success of the succes pon the movement as one in the right direction. If were for the purpose of uniting with us for guinting the price of labor and fuling a uniform bill of rices and regulating other matters by arbituation in an quitable manner, we should consider it a great good. But the first other case. They compain of our tyranny. They up that we are exacting. But what is their conduct. Why, it has two those, they are responsible for this garifac. oquitance manner, we saw. They compiain of our tyrauny. They say that we are exacting. But what is their conduct? Why, in the first place, they are responsible for this further. It was they, not us, who inaugurated this strike. They were the trait to refuse us work; and on what condition? Why, a very modest and a truly charitable one—that is, if we measure things by their standard, it was that we should cease to be members of the Tailors' Union. Was there are things by their standard, it was, that we should cease to be members of the Tailors' Union. Was there are tyrauny in this was must leave our association—an association which has for its object, and only the protection of trade, with the farmore monoising and sindlite purpose of burning that we can again receive works at our hands.
